

Dear friends of Broken Walls:

We are so thankful for you partnering with us with your encouragement and your support!

I just returned from the Wiconi Family Camp and Pow wow that was held in Turner, OR. It was so good to see old friends and make new ones. We also had the opportunity to hear some amazing life stories that challenged our hearts and lives. From our early morning ceremony to our time around the fire, we shared and grew together.

We had a beautiful ceremony celebrating Bryan Brightcloud. His son, Adam, and sister Judy, shared their hearts and were part of the ceremony celebrating Bryan's life. All in all, everyone departed enriched by the experience and were inspired to carry Jesus and share His love everywhere they go.

Upcoming Events:

- August 5th to 8th - Chickahominy Tribal Grounds, Providence Forge, VA. I will post more information to our Broken Walls facebook page as it becomes available.
- August 25th to 28th - Pine Lake Pow wow <https://salvationist.ca/corps-mission-resource/corps-life/indigenous-ministries/indigenous-ministries-events/celebration-of-culture-pow-wow-2022/>
- September 2nd to 4th - Lillooet, BC hosted by Mark Smith, NAIM - more details to follow
- September 13th to 17th - ministry in Michigan - more details to follow
- October 13th - Thunder Bay hosted by the Salvation Army - more details to follow

During this time, Broken Walls has produced a new album called "The Call of the Drum" and we are almost ready to release it. The editing process is almost complete. We will be releasing the first singles on streaming platforms shortly, so stay tuned!
